Andrew Debicki is the leading expert in Canada on how to successfully implement the Wraparound Process and is the Development Director for Wrap Canada.

Melissa Cailleaux is the manager for the Wraparound Project and the Maxxine Wright Place Project with Atira Women's Resource Society.

This four day facilitator training is a certification training for becoming a Wraparound Facilitator. At the end of this training you will be able to immediately implement this approach with children, youth, adults and families.

Wraparound is a person/family driven, team based planning model, based on an individualized plan that uses the strengths of the participant and team members. Wraparound is not a quick fix but a long and intense approach that has been demonstrated to be both effective and efficient in helping people and families dealing with complex and ongoing problems to have a better life on a day to day basis.
